MANY RESCUES EFFECTED

By Police and Firemen—Blaze Started in East Side New York Tenement District Early This Morning.

(Associated Press Telegram)
New York, Dec. 31.—Eight persons, five men and three women were killed in an early morning tenement house fire at 96 Monroe street in the crowded East Side district today. Fifteen persons were injured, four seriously, by jumping from fire escapes. The police and firemen made many rescues.

The fire started in the hall on the ground floor, cutting off escape by the stairway.

An hour before dawn the tenants in the house were aroused by the cries of persons in the street. Finding escape by way of the stairway shut off, they crowded on the fire-escape platforms. Many jumped the calmer waited for the firemen to raise their ladders. A few made their escape over the roofs of adjoining tenement houses.

The dead: Mrs. Becky Kaplan, 55 years old, a widow.

Harney Kaplan, 18, her son.

Louis Kaplan, 16, another son.

Samuel Cohen, 61.

Isaac Weisberg, 50.

Mrs. Pearl Weisberg, 50, wife.

Gussie Mazin, 19.

Israel Golden, 35.

The Maxine girl, after assisting her father and mother and five brothers to the fire escape, lost her head and returned to her room, where she was found dead. The bodies of Mrs. Kaplan, her sons and Samuel Cohen, a tailor who occupied a room with them were found dead in the fifth floor. The bodies of the Weisbergs were in their apartment on the third floor.

More than 30 families were made homeless. Many fled half clad in the biting early morning air, and were taken care of by neighbors. All indications were that the fire was started by an incendiary, and an investigation was begun.

Believe Decisive Battle Will Be Fought at Ojinaga Within the Next 24 Hours

(Associated Press Telegram)
Presidio, Texas, Dec. 31.—It was the opinion of military experts here today that the battle of Ojinaga, Mexico, would be decided within 24 hours. Likewise it was believed that the only way of the federalists to escape extermination, should the rebels pour in on them, was a precipitate flight across the United States border.

The federalists were reported short of ammunition while the rebels by the frequency of their fire appeared to have an ample supply, said to have been taken with the occupation of Chihuahua City. The tactics of narrowing their semi-circle around the federalists were continued by General Ortega's forces.

Whatever the outcome it was certain that no surrender would be considered. General Villa at Chihuahua had said that he would execute all federal volunteers whether they surrendered or not.

United States cavalry patrolling the border considered what they would do if the 1,000 men commanded by almost a dozen generals should start to rush across the river. Major McNamee, commanding the patrol, has less than 1,000 men stationed at points along the river where it was likely refugee soldiers would cross.

Presidio, Texas, Dec. 31.—Practically the entire remnant of the northern division of the Mexican government army faced extermination today. If the federalists cross the border into the United States, they will be arrested and disarmed, and if they continue

NEW OFFICIALS TAKE HOLD ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

Today municipal business is transacted with Mayor F. M. Swartz and City Auditor Wulfoop. Tomorrow visitors to these offices in the trust building will find new faces. The City's affairs will be in the hands of Mayor Royal C. Bigbee and City Auditor A. Nelson Dodd. Both the new officials by law assume the positions at midnight though the active duties, of course, will not be entered upon until the regular hour for opening the offices Thursday morning.

The new city council will meet and organize on next Monday night when Joseph Woodward will be elected clerk and other officials selected. There remains to be selected a president pro tem and the sergeant at arms. Dr. C. B. Keller, republican member elect who holds over from the present council, is a candidate for this position, but it could not be learned if there were other candidates.

The school board will organize next Tuesday night. W. C. Christian will succeed Edward Kibler Sr. and William E. Miller will succeed himself.

Mr. Christian member of school board, and appointed service director, will assume the latter position January 12, one week from next Monday. He will succeed James McCarthy who has served throughout the term of Mayor Swartz.

Carl Dayton, appointed safety director will take charge of the police and fire departments at the same time Mayor Bigbee takes hold of the reins.

NEWARKITE ELECTED OFFICER IN SOCIETY OF OSTEOPATHISTS

Dr. F. E. Corcoran, Newark osteopath, was today elected treasurer of the Ohio Osteopathic Society at the annual meeting in Columbus according to an Associated Press dispatch to the Advocate. At the same meeting, a Newark girl, Mary Weisberg, age 5 years, was operated upon by Dr. George M. Langdon of Kansas, Mo., for congenital hip disease which osteopaths claim can be cured by their method of operation. The little girl has suffered from birth were set in 8 minutes, which is said to be a record in the performance of this operation. Dr. Corcoran well has a patient at Hebron operated upon several years ago for the same trouble which resulted practically in a cure.

Protests of 5,000 citizens of Toledo against a recent compulsory vaccination order of the board of health and board of education there, were upheld in a resolution adopted by the Osteopaths.

"We believe children should not be compelled to submit themselves to vaccination, unless they or their parents desire it," the osteopaths declare. There is no more reason why children should be vaccinated or small pox than for diphtheria.

A protest against vaccination order signed by 5,000 parents recently was prepared in Toledo, the osteopathic practitioners asserted.

Other new officers: Dr. R. W. Sanborn, Akron, president; M. C. T. Hulet, Cleveland, vice-president; Dr. A. L. Bumstead, Delaware, secretary; Dr. A. L. Miller, Cleveland, Dr. E. H. Calvert, Columbus, and Dr. F. W. Long, Toledo, members of the executive committee. Dr. M. T. Hulet, Columbus, was designated as member of the state examining committee.

AN AUTO MISHAP.
An automobile was in trouble at Granville yesterday afternoon. The chauffeur looked it over carefully and tried every means to restore the machine to working condition. Among the spectators was a colored man who seemed keenly interested in the performance. As he walked away another resident of the town approached and inquired the cause of the accident whereupon the colored man replied: "I don't exactly know but I think the transgressor is out of gear."

ISSUE ORDERS TO CAPTURE "HAPPY JACK"

(Associated Press Telegram)
Pineville, Ky., Dec. 31.—Adj. Gen. Ellis received word this morning from Governor McCreary to spend no more time in the siege in attempting to capture "Happy Jack" Hendrickson and his clan of mountaineers who are hiding in the mine between here and Ely. The adjutant general was ordered this morning to take men and enter the mine and be prepared to act accordingly some time this afternoon. Twenty searchlights have been obtained and these will be used by as many men while twenty other men will follow heavily armed.

Thomas Hendrickson, father of "Happy Jack," who entered the mine yesterday and after coming out told that he could not find his son, changed his story today. He said that he had seen his son but that the latter refused to leave the mine as long as the brother of Tom Stewart remained in the posse for fear that Stewart would kill him on sight. "Happy Jack" killed Tom Stewart years ago, and served a term in the penitentiary for the crime.

A fight is expected when the militia meet the clansmen in the mine. For the last few days there have been repeated efforts by many of the soldiers to enter the mine and attempt to bring Hendrickson out.

Entries are coming in in the form of inquiries, and members of the society are at work on a premium list which will be announced shortly, together with the names of judges.

STEEL WORKER KILLED IN FALL

(Associated Press Telegram)
Hamilton, Dec. 31.—John B. Price, 17, steel worker of New Albany, Ind. employed on the new C. & O. D. bridge here, fell between the ties today and was killed. In falling he alighted on the falsework under the bridge and his skull was crushed. He was instantly killed.

GIRL CLAIMS NEEDLE WORKER WAS AFTER HER

Elizabeth Hilleary, aged 22, daughter of M. D. Hilleary of Oakwood avenue, is supposedly the victim of the alleged and now much famed "needleworker." After being called to the telephone Tuesday evening and conversing with a man who refused to give his name, she later met him in front of her home and after talking to him for some time ran into the house in a fainting condition. She collapsed and a physician was called to attend her before she could be revived.

Miss Hilleary is employed as a cigar maker at the Swisher factory. In speaking of the story she says that on Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock someone called her home and asked her to meet him on Cedar street as he had a gift for her. This she consented to, but after leaving the phone decided not to go to Cedar street. About 7 o'clock she was again called to the phone and the same voice chided her for not keeping her engagement. In a joking way she protested she had kept the engagement but missed him. Then he asked her if he could see her in front of her home as he had a gift for her from a friend in another city.

A few minutes later a machine drew up to the curb and the driver sounded the horn several times. She went out and talked to the driver, who, she says, she failed to recognize. He drove an enclosed machine and seemed to be under the influence of liquor. He refused to give her the promised gift unless she take a ride with him. This, she says, she refused to do.

A prayer meeting was being held at the Hilleary home, and Mr. Hilleary, father of the girl, says the man was seen several times about the street. At the close of the meeting the driver accosted a brother of the girl and offered him a piece of money if he would tell his sister to come out. The lad called the sister, and she talked to the man for about an hour. When she came into the house she fell across an ice box in the kitchen in a stupor, her condition growing worse until a physician was called.

Miss Hilleary says that the man told her if she would not take the ride, to reach over the seat for the gift. This she did and felt a stinging sensation in the arm. She remarked he must have a pin in his clothes, but he said it was his tie pin.

The physician's examination, however, failed to show any break in the skin where a needle might have entered the arm, and the needlework theory is not upheld by him. It would seem that the girl was suffering from extreme hysteria and nervousness which ended in a nervous collapse. She is able to be up and around today.

REMOVE PRISONERS FROM CHESTERTOWN TO PREVENT LYNCHING

(Associated Press Telegram)
Chestertown, Md., Dec. 31.—Heavily guarded by soldiers of the fifth regiment, Maryland militia, James Paraway and Norman Mabel, the negroes accused of the murder of James R. Coleman, a farmer, were today taken aboard the state steamer McLean. The steamer, once sailed for Baltimore where the negroes will be placed in jail for safe keeping until their trial is called.

The removal of the prisoners followed closely the granting of a change of venue to Cecil county, where the trial was set for March 2 next, at Elkton.

In granting the motion of the counsel of the accused for a change of venue Judge Constable bitterly scored the would-be lynchers.

The announcement of the transfer of the cases and the removal of the prisoners was met with mutterings of anger but the display of military activity prevented any outbreak.

Chestertown today was practically under martial law.

Pitiful Plight of Unfortunates Not Exaggerated by Report of Committee From the Newark Trades and Labor Council

BUILDINGS ARE MOSTLY FILTHY AND UNSANITARY

Lack of Funds Given as the Reason for the Deplorable Situation—Lives of Inmates Miserable from the Dark, Damp, Dismal Surroundings and Sickening Odors of Disinfectant—Superintendent Will Resign Rather Than See Poor Unfortunates Subjected to Inhuman Treatment.

(By Ben B. Hoover.)
Conditions that beggar description exist at the Licking county infirmary, near Union Station, an institution for the support and proper maintenance of which the taxpayers of the county are paying into the treasury and creating a county poor fund which is said to amount to an average of $2,200 a month, only $600 or $700 of which goes toward maintaining the almshouse itself.

There are 92 inmates whose sole cause for thankfulness rests in three meals daily and the privilege of being sheltered from the rain and cold. The cost of this shelter is danger from infection from at least two serious diseases, the likelihood of having their heads bruised and cut by falling plaster from dilapidated ceilings, and willingness to put up with dark, damp, dismal lodging cells, reeking with the stench of foul air occasionally mitigated by the sickening odor of bedbug and roach disinfectant.

They haven't even the privilege of a chaplain at $200 a year to lead them in prayer once in two weeks!

Agitation of the dire need of correcting conditions referred to by the county board of visitors in its report, and stirring emphasized by the investigating committee of Newark Trades and Labor council has aroused curiosity of people all over the county. In order that these details might be further verified, the Advocate sent a representative to the county infirmary Tuesday to investigate.

It should be said here that Superintendent Charles Poundstone and his wife, the matron, are deserving of great credit for the things they have accomplished under the most serious handicaps during their four months incumbency at the institution. Their views on the situation could be no more aptly expressed than in the statement made to the Advocate's representative Tuesday by Superintendent Poundstone:

"Rather than see these poor unfortunates subjected to such inhuman conditions throughout my term as lack of funds make necessary now, I will resign my position. I don't want to be a party to any system or management that makes such things possible."

The floors of the institution, the only part of all the buildings which limited funds make it possible to care for properly, are immaculately clean all the time. Inmates receive courteous treatment from the superintendent and matron, and this is evident from the affectionate greetings exchanged in a trip through the infirmary buildings.

The county farm consists of 226 acres, two and a half miles south of Granville, "over the hills to the poorhouse."

On an eminence overlooking a broad expanse of good farming country, dotted with spacious, modern residences, stands a huge old-fashioned frame structure with long porticoes, abbreviated gables, broad old brick

Turn of Coin Elects Hughes For the Utica Postmaster-ship; Cong. Ashbrook's Plan Unique

C. C. Hughes of Utica, will be recommended as postmaster of that village, according to announcement of Congressman Ashbrook made yesterday. The recommendation will be sent to President Wilson immediately upon Mr. Ashbrook's return to Washington next week. At the president is back from his vacation trip to Pass Christian, Miss.

When the recommendation is made and the appointment confirmed, Mr. Hughes will have the distinction of having been selected for the position by a method probably never before adopted by any congressman. The turn of a coin decided the question which was an even bet on the three candidates.

Three Utica men, Mr. Hughes, S. B. Hull and Knowlton Aldorf were candidates for the office. All were well endorsed, all were personal friends of the congressman.

Several days ago, Mr. Ashbrook notified each candidate by letter, asking for a conference at Hotel Warden Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Each was advised that the other candidates would be present at the conference to discuss the appointment.

None of the three men had an opportunity to see Mr. Ashbrook before the hour appointed for the conference, when they all went to the congressman's room.

The congressman told each of the three men that he would be satisfied with either of them as postmaster, that he regarded them equally well qualified for the position and told them that the matter must be settled between them.

After a conference which lasted until noon, was adjourned while the candidates and their three supporters were entertained at lunch by Mr. Ashbrook, and resumed rain at 1 o'clock, the men agreed to settle the matter by turning a coin.

Each man with a half dollar in his hand, juggled the coin, slapped it on a table top and agreed that the man with the odd "heads" or "tails" would be recommended for the coveted position. The operation was to be continued until one of the coins turned up "heads".

On the first turn Mr. Hughes was successful, the defeated candidates and their supporters congratulated the new postmaster and hustled for the north-bound B. & O. train immediately thereafter.

Both Mr. Hull and Mr. Aldorf expressed themselves as being well satisfied with the result of the unique contest.

Officials Claim Train Was Wrecked; Fireman Was Scalded Beneath Engine

(Associated Press Telegram)
Mobile, Ala., Dec. 31.—What railroad officials declare was a deliberate attempt to wreck Mobile and Ohio passenger train No. 2, bound for St. Louis, at a siding 12 miles north of this city last night, resulted in the killing of the engine, express and baggage cars and the death of three firemen and serious injury of three other persons. The engineer threw on the emergency brakes as the train struck the switch and saved the passengers from injury.

Fireman Hodges was scalded to death beneath the engine. The more seriously injured who were brought here were W. H. Rigan, engineer, C. P. Humphries, express messenger, and H. Christian, negro porter.

Railroad officials who investigated the wreck stated that the lock which held the switch had been sawed through and the switch opened,

BANQUET GIVEN BY EMPLOYEES OF THE POST OFFICE

Congressman W. A. Ashbrook, Postmaster J. H. Newton and J. M. Farmer were guests of honor at a banquet Tuesday night at Hotel Sherwood tendered by the clerks and carriers of the Newark Post Office. All but four of the force which serves the patrons of the local post office were present, nearly fifty persons being seated at the two banquet tables spread in the dining room of the hotel.

A reception to the employees, with the guests of honor in the receiving line, preceded the procession to the dining room. Each employee was introduced to the congressman and the new postmaster.

In the banquet room, Mr. Ashbrook and Mr. Newton were seated at the head of the table while Mr. Fred S. Wilson, who acted as toastmaster, was seated at the opposite end.

A splendid turkey dinner in several courses occupied the banquet for the better part of an hour when a program of addresses was carried out.

Clerk A. B. Painter talked of the Post Office from the inside.

Saying that the present quarters probably were not all that might be wished for but that better accommodations were in prospect since the new federal building could not be many years in the future. He declared that this was an opportune time for each employee to resolve to give better service to Uncle Sam and closed by proposing a toast to the new postmaster, "Uncle Joe."

D. A. Murphy, probably the oldest employee of the office, spoke of "Reminiscences."

Mr. Murphy entered the post office more than 25 years ago under Postmaster Brady. He told of the problems which the office faced at the time when it was still short of help. He told of the appointment of the first four carriers and followed the development of the service through the years that followed until the present when a force of seventeen city carriers and eight rural carriers with clerks, and substitutes enough to bring the total to more than 40 helpers. He declared that even the present large force was inadequate to handle the ever-growing postal business. He stated that the pay roll of the local office amounted to nearly $60,000 per year.

Rural Carrier W. H. Richards spoke happily of the good fellowship which exists between the post office force. He suggested for a motto for the local force, "do all the good we can."

Postmaster J. H. Newton compared the present large force with that which handled the affairs of the local office during his administration as postmaster 20 years ago. "I am reminded," he said, "of scenes 20 years ago, and I must realize that there has been an enlargement of Uncle Sam's family. It is good to see the faces of such old friends as 'Kid' Kuppinger here tonight."

"I have never thought the postal employees were overpaid and I have never been squeamish about a 'postal deficit.' I want to see an ample force of mail handlers and I want to see them all amply compensated. I want to see a larger force here. I don't care much how big."

"I hope to see more of these occasions and will do everything in my power to make them agreeable. I feel satisfied that every employee will render loyal service to Uncle Sam and to me, regardless of the amount of his pay check."

C. H. Long spoke of "The Post Office from the Standpoint of the Press." He placed the postal service and the modern newspaper in the class of being the greatest powers for the public good and told how closely the two factors are related.

J. M. Farmer spoke of the impressions made upon him by his short experience in the local office at a time when the force was laboring under the strain attendant upon a Christmas rush. He complimented the force for the patience with which the vast amount of matter was handled and told of a patron of the office who was impressed with the lightning like precision with which everything about the office was done.

F. M. Alexander made a clever address in which he used a postal term "dis" to good advantage. His address appealed particularly to the working force of the office. He expressed the pleasure of the entire force in the situation which brought about the appointment of "timetried Uncle Joe" to administer the affairs of the Newark office, and declared that the loyalty of the employees and the pleasure of serving him would make Mr. Newton's administration most successful.

T. Hirst spoke of the Hamilton bill, now before the national congress, providing for the retirement of civil service employees after a certain period. He urged Congressman Ashbrook to support the bill.

Congressman Ashbrook was introduced and expressed his pleasure to have been a guest at the banquet, declaring it an honest expression from the depths of his heart. He proposed a toast to Mr. Newton, all the guests standing as they lifted their glasses.

Briefly Mr. Ashbrook dwelt upon a number of questions of interest to the postal employees. He referred to the Hamilton bill to retire civil service employees, declaring that he would hold out no false hopes to those interested. He declared that it was not probable that the bill would be favorably acted upon in the near future but declared that it was bound to come within the next half dozen years. Along this line he urged his auditors to oppose any movement for a cent letter postage. He declared that this was a proposition being boosted by the big mail order houses and that they would be the sole beneficiaries and declared that this would prevent the fulfillment of the hopes of postal employees that the Hamilton bill would become a law. He favored retaining the two cent standard and use the extra money to extend the service and increase salaries.

He declared that the postal employees were sure to be continued, though gradual increases in salaries. He expressed his hope that he would live to see the time when rural carriers would receive not less than $15.00 per year. He declared that the compensation of the railway mail clerks was wholly inadequate for the service performed and risks assumed and pledged his support for any movement to better conditions of postal employees generally.

Turning to Mr. Newton, Mr. Ashbrook said he hoped the new postmaster would investigate conditions in other offices to determine whether the Newark office was as well cared for as postal divisions elsewhere. He declared if it was found that Newark was behind other cities, he would take up the matter at Washington and endeavor to bring local conditions up to the standard. He declared that Postmaster General Burleson was progressive, that he wanted to improve the postal service all over the country and that this would be done rapidly as possible. He said it was his wish that the postmaster and his assistant should serve the best interests of the patrons and employees of the Newark office.

F. S. Wilson who presided as toastmaster, was perfectly at home at the head of the festal board and was graceful in his introduction of the speakers. He interspersed amusing anecdotes throughout the program. He expressed the thanks of the guests for the Victoria music furnished by courtesy of John J. Carroll.

Experts believe that within a few years he will be one of the notable champions.

WELSH HILLS.

MR. O'NEIL BUYS A COAL MINE

Attorney E. F. O'Neal of Zanesville, who is well known in Licking county, closed a big deal Tuesday when he bought all of the property of the Sallito Coal Co. for $17,000, the sale being made as a result of an order of Referee in Bankruptcy E. R. Meyer.

Mr. O'Neal and others interested in the deal plan the formation of a new coal company to thoroughly develop the property in the near future. The Carnelyville mine of the company is in good condition and ready for operation. The tracts at Sallito and Rehoboth are both good properties, all three parcels having been appraised at $15,700.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Look young! Nobody can tell if you use Grandmother's simple recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy. TWO BROTHERS ARE CHARGED WITH ARSON

Zanesville, Dec. 31. — John F. Jennings, proprietor of the Delmonico restaurant here, and his brother, Orin Jennings, were arrested last night by Deputy Fire Marshal Miller and Davis, and a charge of arson will be filed against the men today, according to Prosecutor C. F. Ribble, charging them with trying to burn the restaurant.

Two mysterious fires at the restaurant in five days, between December 16 and December 21, with an alleged third unsuccessful attempt, caused Fire Chief W. H. Tanner to ask the State Fire Marshal to investigate, and the two arrests last night followed a week's hunt by the Marshals. The officers claimed the two men confessed, and Prosecutor Ribble said that he was present and heard the confessions.

The Marshals claim that John Jennings scattered paper and excelsior over the floor of the cellar and ignited them on one occasion, and that when he tried a second time he broke a gas pipe in the cellar and lighted it after making a fire on the kitchen floor. They also aver that he nailed a piece of board over a bull-eye window in the kitchen door so the flames could not be seen from the street. Last Tuesday morning police found the door of the restaurant open, and, investigating, found Jennings, a brother, inside. He told who he was and was allowed to go.

Jennings, the proprietor, carried $5,000 insurance on his restaurant until a few days before the fire, when he increased it to $2,000. It is said that he has been trying to sell the restaurant for several months. The restaurant is located in the heart of the city. Several families live on the second floor.

Will be sold on date named. Equal terms: One-third cash, one-third in cash and one-third in two years, or cash, at option of purchaser. Deferred payments to bear interest at six per cent, and to be secured by mortgage on the premises.

SHORT SENTENCE IS GREAT BARRIER TO REFORMATION

Washington, Dec. 31.—The system of short sentences is the greatest barrier to the reformation of prisoners, declares the board of charities of the District of Columbia, which in its report, recommends that to overcome this condition the indeterminate sentence and parole system be introduced for prisoners now sent to Occoquan, Va., where the district's work house is located.

"Many prisoners," says the report, "are sent for periods of from 15 to 30 days, and the same men and women are sent repeatedly at frequent intervals."

Theaters

Last Night's Minstrel Show.
Al. G. Field's minstrel was the attraction at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon and evening playing to two audiences that packed the theater from pit to dome. Mr. Field has a splendid show this season and his company is the best one that he has gathered together in a number of years.

The first part was an elaborate stage setting depicting a scene in Panama. The circle was composed of uniformed officers. The two principal comedians were Bert Swor who had a splendid travesty diversion with Mr. Field and Billy Clark whose jokes were taken care of by the interlocutor, Wm. H. Hallett. The solos were excellent and the chorus was one of the best ever heard in the city. Johnny Dove, as the Scotch minstrel, has an excellent soft shoe dancing turn.

The first act of the olio was a laughable skit arranged and written by Bert Swor, who is Mr. Field's right hand bower and whose friends in Newark are legion and who always extend the funny little comedian the right hand of fellowship. His act "The Aviation Meet" took hugely with the audience and especially his monologistic stunts and singing of "Woodmen, Spare That Tree" and "You Leavin' You Now." This was followed by the "Days of '61," arranged by Johnny Dove. Next on the program were the three Lyres, Messrs. F. C. Henderson, S. B. Lewis and H. L. Harvey and their musical skit was certainly enjoyable. The performance concluded with a burlesque on the movies, in which Bert Swor and Billy Clark were the principal comedians, in fact the show throughout was very much Swor and Clark and their witticisms kept the audience in a continual uproar. The company left this morning for Wheeling.

Wisdom from Washington

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Dec. 31.—(Special.)—We may reach a time in our congressional career when we will no longer have the subject of pensions discussed from a sectional and political viewpoint, but it is so discussed now both in the senate and in the house of representatives. Every pension day—and that is twice a month—is a field day in the house for talking about the manner in which public money is extravagantly used for pensions. The critics of the pension system are nearly always southern men, and they charge both the Republicans and the Democrats of the northern states with being pension grabbers for political effect. Naturally this makes sectional feeling, and no matter whether it is true or not it causes hard feelings.

Texans Foremost.
In the discussion before the recess two Texans were foremost in the denunciation of the pension system. Martin Dies said that in recent years the Democrats have done more for the pensioners than the Republicans. "It has been a shameful bid," he said, "between the political parties for the old soldier vote. I protest against this prostituting of the pension roll for campaign purposes by Republicans and Democrats alike."

Congressman Callaway went just as far and more into detail, asserting that men acknowledged to him that they voted for the Sherwood and other pension bills in order to have the government purchase votes for them which they would otherwise lose. These statements were not relished by northern Democrats.

On Second Thought

Married folk who do a good deal of loving in public, are apt to do a good deal of fighting in private.

Every man who has been deeply in love knows there is a hell for the reason he has been through it.

Another inharmonious combination is that of a man and a gold-landed umbrella.

Tank Beverly, who came from a little town on the kerosene theatrical circuit, believes East Lynne has caused more tears than death and affliction.

Mrs. Jasper Ellington is franker than most. She admits that Jasper is the only man who ever proposed to her.

It is no great trick to make the people laugh. The difficult task is to induce them to think.

The greatest luxury is a good night's sleep. And it is about the only thing the people like that is good for them.

What has become of the smart fellow who used to say: "I don't chew my tobacco twice?"

Discontent.

Vain wishes through my bosom, wish, and scratch my soul like teases, and when I have the rheumatism, I wish I had the measles. My heart is never satisfied, and in it there are thrumming vain hopes for things which are denied—a wild, insistent longing. The doctor says I have the gout, prescribing rest and quiet, but I've thrown all fancy victuals out, and I've a hermit's diet, and as I chew the bean and pea, or take my dish of sago, I sigh, "How happy I might be, if I could have lumbago!"

The "blessings which I now enjoy I do not prize or treasure, but find in all a base alloy, and envy him his pleasure who has the shingles or sores, the grip or influenza, or the nurse, my doctor dumps until I'm in a frenzy. It is an evil thing, my friends, to be so constituted, that every blessing which descends, finds one but poorly suited. Unfortunately that man of woe whom nothing ever pleases, who envies people, as they go, their several diseases. Let's be content with what we have, be gay as any colt is, and on our buffons spread the salve, and on our boils the poultice.

WE RECOMMEND

MORSE'S GLYCEROLE FOR NERVOUSNESS

We know what it has done for us. Written 'on Ohio Lady.

Mrs. Mary E. Wraggs, 1225 Myrtle avenue, Zanesville, Ohio, wrote Hazel Morse, compounder of Morse's Glycerole, in part, as follows: "Last Summer I was in a very nervous condition. I went to Chester A. Baird's Drug Store and bought a bottle of Glycerole. I felt much better after taking a few doses. I continued until I felt really well. Now, I never like to be without it. for when I am extra fatigued, I just take a dose or two, and soon feel right again. My husband is taking it and tells how much good it is doing for him. We recommend it to everyone we know, because we know what it has done for us."

This shows that a bottle of Morse's Glycerole should be in every household at all times. There's no telling when someone will be too tired or too nervous to sleep. One dose will quiet the nerves. It's as good for fretful babies and the aged as it is for the vigorous adults.

Get a large 50-cent bottle from your druggist. Take as directed. If you are not pleased with results, your money will be cheerfully given back. Evans' Drug Store, Newark, will supply you if your druggist has none in stock.

"A Happy New Year!"

[Written by a Carrier.]

It takes lots of men in a newspaper shop, And all must keep busy or presses will stop.

The Editor's certain that he's the big noise. He looks more important than the carrier boys; He sits at a desk, and he bosses the works

And keeps the gang jumpin' like so many Turks. But what is the use of his work in good shape

If the Carrier fails to deliver the pape?

THE Reporters are pretty important young chaps; They write about weddings, hoss races and scraps.

Of course they are needed to hunt up the news, But if you should ask for my own honest views

I'd say the Reporter needs legs more than brains, For he spends his time running from hotels to trains.

But what good is all the Reporters can do If the Carrier don't bring the paper to you?

THE printers and pressmen are all worth their pay; They do their work well and with little to say.

They are needed at times, and so is the clerk Who takes in the money, though that is not work.

But the guy that's the real thing, the one who cuts ice, The fellow whose value can't be fixed at a price,

Is the one who begins when the others are through And hurries to bring the paper to you.

HORSE'S KICK FRACTURES THE BOY'S SKULL

Four pieces of bone were removed from the brain of the seven-year-old son of Noah Martin, a farmer residing near Martinsburg when he was kicked in the forehead by a horse Tuesday morning. The lad was turning the horses from the barn yard into the pasture when he was kicked. He was found a short time later by his father. The skull was fractured and the physician who was called removed four pieces of bone, one nearly an inch in length. The lad will recover.

PASSING OF OLD YEAR TAKES OUT CHRISTMAS TREE

The first day of January, 1914, will mark the passing of Newark's first municipal Christmas tree. The illumination of the splendid tree and the big star, with their 400 electric lights, will discontinue with the passing out of the old year tonight. The tree will be taken from the court house park Thursday or Friday morning, and probably will be cut up into fuel.

Success which attended the first municipal Christmas tree venture, and the happy ruletide spirit which it helped to engender, has brought forth numerous expressions of a sentiment greatly favoring the planting of some form of evergreen tree in the court house park to be decorated every holiday season as his year's tree was decorated. Arguments in behalf of a permanent tree are that the expense of transporting and purchasing a new tree each season would be eliminated, and the permanent tree would stand as a beautiful addition to the arborage of the court house park as well as a constant reminder of the spirit of Christmas.

WALDO RESIGNS AS NEW YORK POLICE COMMISSIONER

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) New York, Dec. 31.—Rhinelander Waldo, for nearly four years police-commissioner of New York, put on his hat and walked out of headquarters today. In a letter to Mayor Kline, he said:

"It appears to be the desire of the incoming administration not to appoint a commissioner but to have an acting commissioner appointed by me, remaining in charge of the department. I will not be a party to this plan."

Waldo's resignation leaves the city without a civilian police head until John P. Mitchell, who takes office tomorrow, can name one.

The Christmas Aftermath

They were discussing Christmas and Christmas gifts, what they received, what they wanted, what they thought in general of the celebration.

"I have a lot more pieces for my cushion top," laughed one woman.

"Do friends give you pieces?" inquired the listener in surprise. "I should never have thought of it. But it was nice of them to do it, since you wanted them."

"Oh, no, I didn't receive the pieces among my gifts. But they were in embryo in the neckties my husband received. Every year, a few weeks after Christmas, I get an avalanche of neckties that furnish me all sorts of pretty pieces for my cushions. Dick thinks he will wear the ties, but he never does. And after they have been around until he gets tired of them, he gives them to me."

The voice of another speaker broke in. "For my part," she was saying, "I think I could arrange this matter of gift-giving much better. My plan would be for each of us to take the money we intend to spend for gifts, and go down town and buy the things we ourselves want, tie them up, label them as coming from this and that friend, and present them to ourselves. In this way, every one of us would have just what we want. Instead of my giving Mary something she doesn't want, and Mary's giving me something I do not want, she gives herself what she wants as coming from me, and I give myself what I want as coming from her. Think of the joy of it! Think of spending on yourself the money you do spend Christmas, and of getting the very things you are just aching to own. Everybody would have gifts just the same, and no one would spend any more money. Yet there would be no misfits, no disappointments."

A laugh greeted the idea. Then a woman was heard asking, "What does Christmas really mean to you?"

There was a moment's silence in the group. Then a youngster said, "It means candy and parties and all the things you want." A ripple of laughter followed this, and then a young girl was heard, "Well, it does mean a lot of beautiful gifts, that make you feel happy to think people care so much for you as to give you such things."

"I think I know what it means to Mrs. Osborne," said one of the party, looking at the one who had asked the question.

"What?" chorused the crowd.

"Making other people happy."

A wave of color flushed the other woman's face, and she smiled deprecatingly.

But they all felt the truth of the assertion, for every one's Christmas had been happier because of this woman's thoughtfulness.

REINDEER OPEN NEW QUARTERS LAST EVENING

The first meeting of the Order of Reindeer in the new home quarters, over 25-27 South Park Place, was held Tuesday night. Returning to the regular meeting time, next Wednesday night, the newly elected officers for 1914 will be installed, new members from Mt. Vernon and Utica will be initiated, and a treat is promised the lodge.

Plumbing has been practically finished in the new home, and some of the electric wiring has been done. Trustees of the lodge say they expect to have the lodge room in readiness for a big meeting next Wednesday night, and as several important propositions are to come before the session it is likely there will be a big attendance. Membership of the new degree team will be discussed.

GROCERS MEETING TOMORROW NIGHT

The grocers of the city will observe New Year's day by closing the rest of the day after 8 a. m., with no deliveries.

In the evening the election of officers for 1914 will occur at the convention room of the court house, with smokes for all.

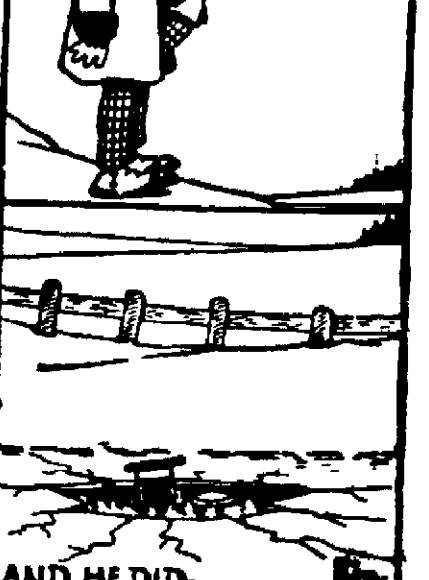

Let there be a good attendance as there promises to be some stir.

EMPLOYEES EXEMPT FROM OPERATION OF CIVIL SERVICE LAW

City and county employees are interested in the decision given Saturday by Attorney General Hogan as to what public employees are exempt from the operation of the new civil service law.

The attorney general is quoted as declaring that among those who are under civil service are deputy state tax commissioners and all subordinates in state, county, city and district offices and departments except in a few instances.

Those who are not under civil service are all elective officers, deputies who act for them; persons appointed by the governor and mayor to the heads of departments, assistant prosecuting attorney; commissioners appointed by the governor and mayor; court bailiffs and village street commissioners.

The state civil service commission announced after the receipt of the rulings Saturday that it would require each of the 102 deputy state tax commissioners appointed by Governor Cox to take a non-competitive examination. This will not be given for months to come because, on account of being overwhelmed with work, it can not be reached earlier.

All employees of council and under civil service as well as all employees under the safety and service departments. This means that all heads of sub-departments and their subordinates will hold on to their jobs permanently if they can pass the non-competitive examination.

Laborers of the state, county and city are under civil service. Their examination will be largely physical.

It will be up to the civil service commission to determine if court stenographers should be placed under civil service. The commission may do as it pleases about this. There are 15 or more court stenographers in the state.

Rev. Gladden Has Resigned Pastorate of Columbus Church

Rev. Washington Gladden who has preached many times in Newark resigned on Tuesday night as pastor of the Columbus First Congregational Church after a pastorate of 31 years. After his resignation had been accepted by the church, Dr. Gladden was elected pastor-emeritus at a salary of $2,500 a year. Rev. Carl S. Patton, who became associate pastor in 1911 when the pastor resigned, will continue to preach when it is desired, and will take part in other church work. His advanced age and desire to do other work prompted him to resign. He will make his home in Columbus.

ADVOCATE

Back of this, fifty yards to the southwest, is the men's building, of brick and stone.

A little farther to the south stands the frame structure known as the old ladies' building—the one structure in passing fair condition.

East of this is the joint accommodation for the bakery and smoke-house. Next door is a tool house. The first floor has a little corner space for Dave Watkins, the community cobbler. With the aid of a lantern one may climb a lopsided, creaky, winding staircase and behold the abode of the only segregated case in the institution. Here in his lonely corner, exists a poor, enfeebled victim of diphtheria, whose power of speech is gone and who has no control of the saliva glands and muscles of the mouth. Other inmates refused to eat with him at the table, so he has been segregated.

Five known tuberculars and four well advanced victims of syphilis are not segregated. Instead, these are permitted to roam at large with other inmates, sharing sleeping quarters, eating at the general tables and associating with those less afflicted.

The reason is cramped quarters, lack of proper places to put the 82 inmates. It's simply a case of making the best of conditions as they are.

Even the men's hospital ward, in a corner room on the second floor of the big brick building, is about to be pressed into service for sleeping quarters.

In each of the little sixio sleeping rooms of the men's department are two cots. Perhaps there are three or four exceptions where there is just one cot in the room.

These little dark cells are veritable dungeons in the basement, where most of the afflicted unfortunates stay.

Beside nearly every one of these cots is a plain tin can. The county cannot afford cuspidors. Even the five tuberculars are accommodated with these tin receptacles, which are emptied as frequently as the help can get to it.

In this dungeon-like basement of the men's dormitory there is a T-shaped hallway. On either side of the main hall are the little dungeons, some of them barred like a prison cell, where uncontrollable inmates are placed for safe detention. The others offer just room for a plain cot or three-quarter size iron bedstead and a little table under the one grated window. Sometimes there is a chair or stool in sight, and occasionally a glimpse of a grimy picture that has been clipped from some old magazine and tacked on the wall in a hopeless endeavor to put a little cheer into this living-death existence!

The cross section of the T is a general "ward", or sleeping room. This room, walled with stone, lighted by a single gas burner enclosed in an old-fashioned "Diogenes lantern," accommodates as many sleepers as can be huddled into the double iron beds set just far enough apart to permit a person to step between them.

In the far corner of this room, his bed huddled against the wall, by the aid of a dim light coming through a high window, two feet square in the wall and about six and a half feet from the concrete floor, one was permitted to gaze at one of the "curiosities" of the institution—Jacob Woodruff, said to be 112 years old.

At first glance all one may see is a bundle of bed clothing. When this is pulled back, a ghostly white face and white hair protrude from under the edge of the covering, a little strained grunt is heard, and Jacob Woodruff, who was born before Newark was a logpile, cuddles down to his everlasting task—sleeping under the covers. He is not totally deaf, nor totally blind. But he cannot talk coherently. He has been bed-fast since 1907, when he sustained burns about the legs and was rendered practically helpless.

It is said he was 68 years old when he came to the county infirmary on September 1, 1869—forty years ago! Records of the institution show nothing more about him than the date of his admission. The usual records of nativity, relations, etc., have been omitted.

And this is the man who had not been given a bath for three years, until four months ago when Superintendent Poundstone took charge, according to the statement of the superintendent and inmates!

This is the man whose bed clothing yielded a full pint of bedbugs and roaches when the superintendent started his cleanup, which was halted by "lack of funds."

There is one dungeon in this basement where it would seem impossible for human life to continue. It's larger than the rest and accommodates several articles of furniture, chief of which are a double and a single bed, which are occupied by three feeble-minded persons at night and part of the day.

The only ventilation of this dungeon is by means of its only door, which leads into the damp, hot corridor with its germ-laden atmosphere. There isn't a window in the room. It's a solid stone cell with a cracked-plaster ceiling which is apt to collapse any minute and end an unhappy existence for the three unfortunates. Of course it is lighted a little—from the reflection of a gas burner in the hallway.

This basement is equipped with two toilets and a bath tub—the latter a zinc-lined wooden-framed affair. There are nearly a half dozen bathrooms in the infirmary buildings, to accommodate 82 inmates with a bath a week for each! Superintendent Poundstone, while compelled to neglect the overseeing of the institution in order to work the farm, since he is allowed only two assistants on the farm, did succeed in having a new, sanitary bath and toilet installed in the women's building recently.

The women's building is generally dilapidated. Plastering is off the ceiling of four occupied rooms, and more ready to drop. Window shades, or what pass for such, are in shreds, the walls are cracked and dirty, and in great need of paper, while the woodwork bears evidence of many years since it received a touch of paint or varnish. The staircases are lopsided and rickety, and the toilet accommodations are decidedly bad.

On the second floor of the women's dormitory the toilet sets on the edge of a few broken boards, back of which is a hole big enough to admit the body of a woman. Ten or twelve feet below this opening a concrete floor. A fall through this hole probably would mean death.

On every hand is the dark, dismal aspect of misery. Great holes around the plumbing offers a passable trail for insects and vermin. Everywhere is the sickening odor of disinfectant used by the superintendent in the vain fight against the evergrowing army of bedbugs and roaches.

Tuesday, a poor blind woman, smilingly asked the matron for the loan of a penny that she might buy a holiday card to send to a friend. It was just a little incident emphasizing the fact that there unfortunates are human, though afflicted.

The chapel, in the women's dormitory, is closed. Dust has collected on the seats and on the preacher's rostrum and pulpit. Those of the inmates of religious inclination must satisfy themselves with private prayer or little meetings in their rooms.

Matron Poundstone was asked Tuesday, by one of the invalid women:

"Would you care if we held a watch meeting here tomorrow night?"

"Certainly not," was the gracious reply.

And the old lady's face beamed with joy, and her friend chuckled with child-like delight at the thought. What a little hope it takes to bring happiness in a place like that!

But $200 a year stands between the inmates and their semi-monthly chapel service!

The kitchen equipment, both for the superintendent's family and in the two kitchens of the women's and men's dormitories, is deplorably scant. Despite this, the hired cooks, with assistance of what few inmates who may be depended upon, keep the kitchen clean and try to make the food palatable, all the while waging their war on the kitchen pest—the roach.

"The White Swan" is a part of the institution one might overlook. It's a tiny white house with a green door, and it stands way off down the hillside in the lot with the old ladies' department. It's the pest house. This, the Advocate man "passed for cause," as the lawyers say.

On the whole, the institution was found to be in quite as bad condition as reported by the investigating committee of Newark Trades and Labor council. The buildings all need spouting and painting. The plumbing needs repairing or, better still, complete re-setting. The four-story men's dormitory is heated from the basement upward, so that by the time the stuffy, dark stone-walled cellar passages are unbearably hot, the top floor is just comfortably warm.

Two occupants of one of these hot subway cells one would be tempted not to mention. They are feeble minded and have absolutely no sense of physical cleanliness. It is necessary to make several regular daily inspections of their cell to keep the floor clean from offal and filth. In many of these cells the windows are kept closed tightly, in accord with the wishes of the occupants.

One of these little rooms is occupied by a blind man in advanced stages of tuberculosis. Most of his time he spends in bed. Beside him on the floor is his tin can cuspidor. The door is almost air tight, and the window is kept tightly closed. Tuesday he asked "what kind of weather was out there."

The supply of farming implements is a little redeeming feature. There is an ample equipment and all the implements are in good condition.

The big general stable, practically new, is in good condition—the horses and cows are kept there. The swine pens are in fair condition—there's where the hogs stay. It's only where human beings stay that conditions are unbearable.

This year the butchering supply was represented in forty-seven heads of hogs. The least number ever butchered for the home in any previous year was 85.

Superintendent Poundstone says he has been instructed that it would be best to use this meat now instead of putting it up for later use, when the market price of pork will have advanced to anywhere from five to eight cents a pound, if past seasons may be used as a criterion.

The status of the finances of the institution, under the present scale of expenditures, allows funds for running the expenses for about eleven months, falling short about one month's expenses.

It is contended that outside relief is used from the poor fund and charged against the infirmary. This poor fund totals about $2000, it is said, whereas the infirmary is allowed about one-third of it.

Among the "cuts" ordered is the necessary luxury, tobacco. Most of the old men who are inmates of the institution have been hard workers in their earlier years—farmers, laborers and the like. Their average daily consumption of chewing tobacco ought to be safely estimated at one package a day for each healthy working man who uses tobacco.

The moral purpose of an institution like an infirmary is understood to be the supplying of home comforts to the county's dependants. Yet the edict has gone forth that no inmate of the institution shall be allowed in excess of two packages of chewing tobacco—five cents a package—in any one week. This is said to be a genuine hardship on many of the inmates who have been tobacco users since early youth.

Of the 92 inmates, three are totally blind, three are almost totally blind, five are tuberculars of advanced type, and the majority are feeble-minded.

The closest approach to providing for their comfort and making sanitary their surroundings was when Superintendent Poundstone put a man to work at $1 a day white-washing the smudgy basement of the men's dormitory. The work was ordered stopped, on the basis of too much expense.

As a parting observation, before leaving the infirmary with its foul atmosphere and dismal surroundings, The Advocate's representative heard this exchange of remarks between an aged man and the superintendent, which tells its own story:

"Have you any of that stuff yet for the beds?"

"No. We ran out two weeks ago and I've been trying to get some more," said Superintendent Poundstone. "As soon as we get some I'll let you have it."

The superintendent explained when asked, that the request was for bedbug exterminator. The supply ran out two weeks ago, and he explained that he was told the delay was occasioned by an effort to obtain some at a cheaper price.

So these are only a few of the incidents coming under the observation of a visitor making a more or less hasty trip through the institution which passes as a "home" for Licking county's destitute dependants. What an extensive investigation would develop is a matter of conjecture.

It is expected that further developments will be brought out when the investigating committee from the trades and labor body meets with the county commissioners next Wednesday to discuss means of relieving the situation. Whether there is occasion for relief may be learned best from a personal tour of the buildings comprising the institution.

The present help employed on the grounds and about the buildings consists of two farm hands, one engineer, one nurse, three cooks and one dining room girl. The inmate help that is reliable is limited only to the pettiest kind of errands which do not involve genuine responsibility.

One feature of the situation worthy of consideration is the fact that until less than a year ago the institution had been in the hands and under the management of boards of infirmary trustees. Only four months ago the present board of county commissioners came in office. The present superintendent and matron were appointed at that time by the new board.

Many of the conditions which exist may be chargeable to neglect of years under management of infirmary boards.
